- developed Maine’s Fund of Funds to turn good ideas into good, local jobs
- spearheaded the design of portable pensions for teachers and state workers

Friends and neighbors,

My father’s family fished the Maine coast and split granite in Stonington. My mother’s family felled trees and dug potatoes in Aroostook. I grew up packing groceries in Gorham, teaching swimming in Standish and canning corn on the Farmington flats. Now I run a small business in Skowhegan and manage woodlots in Cornville.

Each winter for the past 16 years, I have commuted from Cornville to Augusta -- just as legislators before me have done since 1820. As a citizen lawmaker, I have studied every facet of Maine’s far flung government. I know state budgets. I have read the many audits. I know where to make changes, how to save millions.

Our state is facing its most difficult fiscal challenge since the depression of ‘33. Opportunity exists, but we must act decisively and get it right.

This election is about Maine values, integrity and preparedness. We need a Republican leader devoted to Maine with the will to rebuild our finances and invest in our future.
